If only walls could talk, this fascinating residence would have many a tale to tell! Logwoods Homestead is an intriguing slice of Sunshine Coast history, located just outside the tiny Hinterland village of Eudlo.

Hand-built in 1932 using traditional methods and Blackbutts & Bloodwoods felled on the property, this genuine log cabin is a true character in every sense of the word. The soaring ceilings shelter a rambling family home with vintage charm evident around every corner, from the feature fireplace to the secret attic.

Over the decades this extraordinary property has been: a popular holiday resort in the 1930's & 40's, a strawberry farm in the 1950's, a Devonshire Tea cafe in the 1960's, with a touch of Hollywood in the 1990's when Jackie Chan filmed interiors for the film 'First Strike' in the homestead.
